Gerald Group publishes 2024 Sustainability Report

London, 21 March 2025 – Gerald Group ("the Group"), a leading global commodity trader of ferrous, non-ferrous and precious metals, has published its 2024 Sustainability Report, which is available at gerald.com/2024sustainabilityreport.

At Gerald Group, sustainability is about creating long-term stakeholder value by conducting business in a way that addresses the needs of the environmental, social and financial systems that we operate within.

Craig Dean, Executive Chairman and CEO, said: *"*We are very pleased with our progress in integrating sustainability throughout our business, from adopting more ambitious net-zero greenhouse gas reduction targets to enhancing our industry-leading gender parity, and other value-driven initiatives across our supply chains."

Our Report, the third iteration in Gerald Group's annual sustainability reporting provides an overview of our approach, performance and activities during 2024, including asset-level reporting for Marampa Mines Limited (MML), Gerald Group's flagship iron ore mining subsidiary in Sierra Leone.

This year's theme focuses on the role of commodity traders in the metals value chain and how Gerald Group leverages its role to influence the adoption of responsible sourcing best practices, both upstream and downstream. Broader than a single material topic, responsible sourcing serves as the overarching goal of Gerald Group's sustainability initiatives across our business.

"Our 2024 Sustainability Report is a true reflection of the maturity of our sustainability programme and a testament to how our sustainability programme contributes to reducing risk, generating returns and creating tangible benefits for both Gerald Group and our stakeholders," said Daniele La Porta, Gerald Group's Global Head of Sustainability and ESG.

New in 2024, we revised the greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions reduction targets for our trading operations by adopting a net-zero pathway aligned with the Science Based Targets initiative (SBTi).

Gerald Group's sustainability objectives and material topics are aligned with and contribute to the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

The report was written in reference to the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) Sustainability Reporting Standards.
